BevCam Executive Director's Report
For the Month of November 2014

PRODUCTION AND OUTREACH

Roberta Chadis talks to Kim Woods about dog hospice care on "Dog Health News"

New producer Roberta Chadis started taping two new show series in November. One is called "Get Your Voice Out There", which will feature people with a mission in mind and stories to tell; and the other is "Dog Health News", dedicated to the well-being of man's best friend.

Media teacher Jo Lloyd's Journalism class, which is responsible for putting out the school paper, The Ledger, has embarked on a new venture. They will be producing a video version of the paper "Ledger Live" to be aired on Channel 22, BevCam's educational Channel.

Kim Allyn helps "Exit 18" set up for their taping on "Ledger Live".

BHS Drama Class students crew a taping session in the BevCam studio

The Beverly High Drama Class has begun taping regular segments in the BevCam studio featuring scenes from plays and dramatic readings to sharpen their skills as well as provide content for Channel 22.

On November 12, BevCam taped a regional workshop in Gloucester sponsored by Maritime Gloucester and Essex Heritage, featuring presentations by teachers, administrators, and educators who described innovative educational partnership programs.

Students and teachers from Amesbury HS report on project results

Rachel Thomas interviews BevCam ED Walt Kosmowski on her show

Recent BHS graduate Rachel Thomas continues to tape more shows in her series “Diabetic Girl Diaries”. She started producing shows while still a student in the media department.

As in previous years, BevCam taped Beverly’s annual Holiday Parade on the Sunday after Thanksgiving. Al Temkin and Andi Freedman hosted the proceedings.

Andi freedman and Al Temkin welcome Santa’s arrival

Mark Layman prepares to tape the Beverly-Salem Thanksgiving game

BevCam was at Hurd stadium on a cold snowy Thanksgiving morning to tape the 116th playing of the annual Beverly-Salem Football Game. Beverly prevailed 37-0.

Sandra Lawson and Dugie Russell talk fungus on the set

Sandra Lawson has kept up a torrid pace taping her “Get Your Garden Growing” series programs. She recently hosted Beverly’s macrophagist extraordinaire Dugie Russell.

Kim Hyder tapes a public service announcement in the BevCam studio

Kim Hyder continues to tape the “Friends of Beverly Animals” series with interesting guests and topics. She also frequently produces public service announcements related to pet and animal topics.

In addition to the Drama Class and Journalism productions noted earlier in this report, Ms Jo Lloyd’s media class has started to produce 4 more new series shows: “Glass Half Full”, “Perspectives”, “ What’s cooking”, and “The Studio”. In addition, they continue to produce public service announcements and promo pieces. The Media Department’s output is truly outstanding.