

BevCam Executive Director's Report
For the Month of June 2016

PRODUCTION AND OUTREACH

The 101st Airborne Division Association along with Windrush Farm, sponsored a new and unique event for disabled veterans. BevCam was on hand to tape the first Horsemanship for Heroes program on location in Andover.

The veterans get to meet the horses up close and personal during the program

On June 7, the Greater Beverly Chamber of Commerce sponsored another in their series of Leadership Breakfasts. The featured speaker was Karen Andreas, the publisher of the Salem News.

Karen Andreas speaks at the Greater Beverly Chamber Leadership Breakfast

Mayor Mike Cahill addresses the Economic Development attendees at the Cabot

The City of Beverly sponsored an Economic Development Summit on June 1 at the Cabot Center, featuring presentations by City officials promoting the advantages of Beverly as an ideal location for new business and development projects.

For several years now, BevCam has hosted students from the Proctor School in Topsfield during their “Work a Day” program. For a half-day, the students act as directors, cast and crew while taping a show they produce themselves.

Kim Allyn gives advice to the on-air talent and crew from Proctor School.

On June 21 BevCam joined its colleagues from other access stations around the state to present testimony at the State House in support of a bill which would require cable companies to broadcast local access TV content in hi-definition.

Local access TV supporters filled the state senate committee hearing room

Roberta Chadis continues to produce and host 2 show series, including “Dog Health News”. On June 17, her guest was Warren Sadow who discussed dog training and dog intelligence.

Roberta Chadis and her guest Warren Sadow preparing to tape her show.

Beverly Arts Fest was held again this year downtown on Cabot Street. The evening before, an artists reception was held at the Manninen Center at Endicott College.

Endicott President Richard Wylie welcomes the arts community to the reception